

It appears we're unable to extract information based purely on standard searches. If the document contains images or scanned handwritten text, direct access to analyze those files might be necessary. If you can provide more context or specific pages where assignments begin, it would assist in identifying each student's work.

Alternatively, if there's a preferred page or section to begin from, or if you can upload a different version of the document with better text recognition, that could help. Let me know how you'd like to proceed!
